

URBAN FOOD GARDEN OPEN

This is a chance to see a productive food garden in mid summer. The garden includes a large vegetable patch, fruit trees and berry bushes, two greenhouses, a chicken run, compost bins and seedling propagation bench. John Ditchburn, author of urbanfoodgarden.org, has been maintaining the garden for over thirty years. John will be on hand throughout the day to answer questions about the garden and food gardening in general.

WHEN: Sunday 8th January, 9am until 4pm.

WHERE: 104 Crompton Street Soldiers Hill, Ballarat.

Manilla coloured wooden house with high green Colorbond roof.

There will be a sign on the front fence.

COST: $5 donation. All proceeds going to maintain and update the Urban Food Garden website, which is a free online food gardening information service tailored to Ballarat's gardening conditions.
